Our dedicated team of reactive support experts can help reduce unplanned downtime, increase asset life and reliability, and ensure productive environments are a major part of our planned maintenance and predictive and diagnostic services.

We are engineers specialising in the repair, refurbishment and replacement of ventilation systems. We have considerable experience in solving ventilation problems. These might include too hot, too cold, too much air, too little air, noise problems, reliability problems, as well as problems with the ventilation equipment itself. We are happy to work with other experts and trades to provide a successful outcome to complex issues in building services. Based in Ringwood in Hampshire, we work throughout the UK on commercial, public and industrial building ventilation systems. Our people have a wide range of skills including electrical, mechanical, controls, commissioning.

We manage all works to ensure work is completed on time to customer satisfaction. All works are done by in-house AHS Specialist Services engineers.
